Special Despatch to THE New York HEMALD.

CHICAGO, June 13.—New York probably will be omitted from the itinerary of the Chicago Opera Company, not next winter but in the more remote future, as a measure of economy. This was outlined in a talk by Harold F. McCormick, member of the executive committee of the executive committee of the executive committee of the company, at a luncheon of the Citizens' Chicago Opera Company to-day.

"The destiny of the opera company in the future is in Chicago and the middle West," said Mr. McCormick. "In the west," said Mr. McCormick. "In the in season.

member of the executive committee of the company, at a luncheon of the Citizens' Chicago Opera Company to-day.

"The destiny of the opera company in the future is in Chicago and the middle West," said Mr. McCormick. "In the past it was thought advisable to take the company on a New York tour and austain a financial loss of close to $200,-000 because of the added prestige which the New York season gave the company. In the future this may not be necessary or advisable.

"Under the control of trustees economies will be practiced which were not effected under practically personal ownership."

Mr. McCormick was asked to-night if the company planned to cancel the New York engagement for next winter. "Certainly not," he replied. "All arrangements have been completed for the New York trip the coming season. We are experiencing a little difficulty in getting an auditorium. It is beginning to look as if the company would appear at the Lexington.
"At the luncheon to-day I was talking of the future," he continued. "I cited the deficit of a New York engagement only as an illustration of how the company lost money in the past. The company lost money in the past. The company lost money in the past.

"WHIRL OF NEW YORK" MAKES A FINE WINTER GARDEN SHOW

What was first intended to be a revival of "The Belle of New York" reached the stage of the Winter Garden last right under a new name. The ctructure of words and music erected on the foundation of the old Casino play is called now "The Whirl of New York." Louis Mann as the polite lunatic was not quite in the way of applying the brush with the breadth necessary to make an impression in one of these excalled now "The Whirl of New York." travaganzas. some seven scenes in two acts. The runway, patient of so many varied burdens, served as the bridge to bring the Salvation lassies to the stage. Whoever thought the latest representative of the lovely Edna May would enter in that way? Edgar Smith, Al Goodman and Lew Pollack were responsible for the embellishments to the old text. Perhaps there was no part of the former language so grateful to the ears as the rhymes of the librettist. Mr. Morton, as he chose to call himself when first writing for the stage, was superior in the versification of his lyrics to most of his successors. Mr. Kerker's tunes at supremacy made him a feared but picturesque figure among Cuban leaders. His struggle to overthrow President Menocal in February, 1917, led to his arrest while at the head of a revolutionary band and his confinement for a time as a prisoner of state in Havana. He did not regain his complete liberty until March, 1918, when an amnesty was granted by President Menocal. Gomez won honor in the Cuban war of independence. He early contested the leadership of the Liberal party, after Spain had been expelled, with Alfredo Zayaz as his rival. Gomez headed the Miguelista faction. Zayas the Zayistas. During the first American intervention in Cuba, Gomez served for almost a year and a half as Civil Governor of the province of Santa Clara. He was a member also of the Constitutional Assembly. Gomez was said to be a leader of the intrigue that unseated the first President of Cuba, Estrada Palma, and cleared the way after American intervention for his own advance to the Presidency. Gomez
